*To everything there is a season, and a time for every purpose under heaven.
Ecclesiastes 3:1*

*We can't rush any season, let alone winter. So let it do its job. Slowly, slowly.
Wintering is there to help us adapt and rejuvenate.
Rest, reflect, put the house in order.
Spring will surely come in time.
Sheridan Voysey*

Dear Members and Friends of the Trinity Family,

I came across a helpful word recently: Wintering. Author Katharine May uses wintering to describe those moments when life turns cold through crisis or loss and we find ourselves living at a different, slower pace from everyone else. As winter is a time of retreat and hibernation for much of the natural world, wintering is the process by which our bodies and souls and spirits seek rest and recuperation when the clouds descend and light fades.

Plants and animals don't fight the winter; they don't pretend it's not happening and attempt to carry on living the same lives they lived in the summer. They prepare. They adapt. They perform extraordinary acts of metamorphosis to get them through. Winter is a time to step back, to withdraw from the world, to maximize resources. It is a time for reflection, recuperation, for putting your house in order - literally and figuratively. It's a time for coziness and comfort, reading a book by the fire, enjoying a soft blanket, going to bed early, making homemade soup.

Wintering is deeply unfashionable. Slowing down, getting enough sleep, taking your time, resting...is a radical, but essential act. God has something to teach us during each of the four seasons. In God's hands all the seasons are purposeful. All have meaning. So instead of counting down the days until Spring when the daffodils start blooming and the days get longer, let's settle into winter for a few more weeks. Let's learn what God wants to teach us during this season of slowing down, resting, and healing. As our hearts yearn for the new life of Spring, let's settle in. Let's practice some wintering. Let's do it together.

Peace, love, and joy,

Pastor Susan Crowell
